In 1939 the Currituck Beach Lighthouse was automated and the keepers vacated the station. The United States Coast Guard assumed responsibility for the lighthouse. July 1, 1939, under the President's Reorganization Plan No. 11, made effective this date by Public Resolution No. 20, approved June 7, 1939, it was provided "that the Bureau of Lighthouses in the Department of Commerce and its functions be transferred to and consolidated with and administered as a part of the Coast Guard". When the United States Coast Guard took over the Currituck Beach Light Station in 1940, members of the Coast Guard stationed at the Currituck Beach Lifeboat Station maintained the lighthouse. Their duties maintaining the Fresnel lens, cutting the grass, and painting the interior of the tower. A garage located in the staff parking lot was turned into a stable for the horses used in riding the beaches during WWII. Hay was stored in the little keeper's house. Around 1947, after the end of WWII, the Currituck Beach Lifeboat Station was closed and the care and maintenance of the lighthouse was taken over by members of the USCG from the Caffey's Inlet Station, which today is part of the Sanderling Restaurant. In 1955 when electricity became available in the Corolla area, there was no further need to charge the batteries used to light the lens, but a generator continued to be used in the event of a power failure. The generator, along with cleaning the lens, cutting the grass and painting the interior tower, continued to be maintained by the Coast Guard. In 1963, Lamplighters, civilian personnel hired by the USCG, took over the duty of maintaining the lighthouse. History provided by Norris Austin, Ottley W. Austin, and L. M. "Tink" Scarborough.

	On June 1, 1990, Outer Banks Conservationists, Inc. (a 501(c)(3) nonprofit) signed a 20-year lease with the United States Coast Guard that included standard clauses requiring it to "protect, maintain, and keep in good order" the light-tower premises. In an "Addendum to License", OBC further agreed that "all work of any nature (including labor or material) that will affect historical aspects of the Licensed Property, either external or internal to the structures will only be done in accordance with the 'Standards of rehabilitation' published by the Secretary of the Department of the Interior..."* On July 21, 1990 OBC was able to open the lighthouse for the first time to the public for climbing. * Excerpt from OBC's application to obtain light station property February 7, 2003 written by Angel Ellis Khoury
